

"All the News
That's Fit to Print"

The New York Times

National Edition

Southern California: A few morning clouds at coast, otherwise sunny. Hot in interior. Highs 75-80 at beaches, 85-95 just inland, 95-105 in deserts. Weather map, Page C18.

VOL. CLVIII . . . No. 54,444

© 2008 The New York Times

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 2008

Printed in California

$1.50

KERRY HAYES/LIONSGATE FILMS

'American Psycho' Musical Planned

He sings, he dances, he commits horrific acts of torture, murder and cannibalism: Patrick Bateman, the disturbed protagonist of "American Psycho," is slated to slice his way onto Broadway in a musical adaptation of the 1991 Bret Easton Ellis novel, Variety reported. Rights for a musical version of "American Psycho," about a 1980s-era investment banker turned serial killer with an abiding affection for the music of Phil Collins, were acquired by the Johnson-Roessler Company; the Collective, a management and production firm; and XYZ Films. Christian Bale, above, played Bateman in the 2000 film version. No announcements have been made about the Broadway creative team or cast.